Dear Neighbour,

As Delivery Project Manager for Carrownagowan Wind Farm, I am pleased to announce that key pre-construction site activities will soon begin. This will include essential tree felling around the turbine locations and associated site investigation works.

Tree felling will be carried out by Roundwood, a felling specialist, and monitored by Veon, a leading forestry consultant. This work is anticipated to commence in the second half of February. Site investigation works will be undertaken by Irish Drilling Ltd and continue throughout March until May. Overall, the site works are scheduled to take up to ten weeks, weather permitting. The timing for the haulage of felled timber may exceed the initial works period to minimise traffic over this period.

There will be appropriate environmental monitoring as part of the site works and FuturEnergy Ireland personnel will make frequent inspections during this period.

The works will be subject to the Safety, Health and Welfare at Work Act, and our contractor, Irish Drilling, will be responsible for the site in this regard. While the forest will remain open to the public, the contractor will restrict access to specific sections over the duration of the works. Unauthorised access to these locations will be prohibited during harvesting operations and site investigation works. Appropriate signage will be in place, and we would request that members of the public take caution if they are on site, given the nature of the works.

As always, if you have any questions or concerns, please get in touch with the project's Community Liaison Officers (CLOs), Kevin Donnellan and Michael McNamara, whose contact details are listed below. We will also keep the project website www.carrownagowanwindfarm.ie updated.

Kind regards,
